EARTHQUAKE IS FELT AT UKIAH

One of the heaviest earthquakes in the history of the town was felt here at 5.15 Wednesday morning. There were two distinct shocks and the vibrations seemed to be from north to south. Three or four other light shocks were felt during the morning but the latter ones did no damage. While the result was apparently (uite disastrous here reports from neighboring places seem to show that Ukiah escaped very lightly.

The greatst damage done was to the new building which was in the course of construction on State street and is the property of Mrs. W. D. White. This was a fine two story structure with a pressed brick front and would have been ready for occupancy in a week or so. Portions of the front fell out and the rear of the structure was badly cracked. The whole building was thrown out of plumb and it is left in such a dangerous condition that it will have to be torn down.

The front had not been put in yet and so the building was not as well prepared to withstand the shock as it would have been had it been finished. It also appears that the Rudee building which adjoined it on the north swayed and aided in crowding it out of shape. The actual loss of the building was about $6,000 which was the approximate cost of construction. The loss was particularly unfortunate for Mrs. White as she lost the building which formerly occupied the lot by fire some months ago. York & Cleland were also unfortunate in having been burned out in the fire and were just preparing to start business in the new store having ordered their fixtures and stock. Laughlin & Duff who were also to have a room in the new building are now without a store.

The McGlashan block was considerably damaged, a strip several feet deep and about half the length of the building having fallen from the north wall. The structure was also cracked and damaged on the interior and the plate glass windows broken.

The Odd Fellows hall got a shaking up and most of the plaster in the second story was demolished. The building was cracked on the east side but it is thought that it can be repaired. The warehouse was bably shaken up and considerable damage done the contents which were owned by C. Hofman. Some damage was done Mr. Hofman's stock on the first floor of the building.

Mrs. Cranz's millinery store was pushed out of plumb apparently by the weight of the Eversole building against it. The plate glass windows in the building were all broken. The Eversole building was slightly cracked and the upper story was denuded of plaster. Fortunately the hotels stood the shock and the only damage done either to the Cecille or the Palace was the loss of some plaster in the upper stories. All the bricks in town, in fact, lost some of their plaster, and plate glass fronts are rather scarce at present. The only damage done the court house was the loss of one of the chimneys on the north side.

A good many brick chimneys over the town were overthrown, including those of the grammar and high schools. One from the Mason's hall crashed through the roof of Donohoe & Ganter's plumbing shop. Most of the law libraries in town took a drop. Attorney McNab's book case upset and scattered opinions worse than any court ever did while W. P. Thomas' library shared the same fate. The big water tank at the depot fell over and crashed the front room of the house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Alcott. Mr. Alcott was just building his fire and the miniature tidal wave that swept through the residence, inundated things and put out the fire in the stove.

SAN FRANCISCO IN SMOULDERING RUINS

The most reliable news received from San Francisco was in a paper dated at San Francisco and issued under the heading of the Call-Chronicle and Examiner on the nineteenth. The following is the leading statement of the disaster copied from one of the two issues brought to this town and kindly loaned by Mrs. E. C. Cheesebro. Louis Cunningham had the other one and loaned it to the anxious crowd.

Death and destruction have been the fate of San Francisco. Shaken by a trembler at 5:13 Wednesday morning the shock lasting 48 seconds and scourged by flames that raged diametrically in all directions, the city is a mass of smouldering ruins. At 6 o'clock last evening the flames, seemingly plying with increasing vigor. threatened to destroy such sections as their fury had spared earlier in the day. Building their path in a triangular circuit from the start in the early morning, they jockeyed as the day waned, left the business section, which they had entirely devastated, and skipped in a dozen directions to the residence portion. As night fell they made their way over into the north beach section and springing anew to the south they reached out along the shipping section down the bay shore, over the hills and across to Third and Townsend streets. Warehouses, wholesale houses and manufacturing concerns fell in their path. This completed the destruction of the entire district known as "South of Market Street." How far they are reaching to the south across the channel cannot be told as this section is shut off from San Francisco newspapers.

After dark thousands of the homeless were making their way with their blankets and scant provisions to Golden Gate Park and the beach to find shelter. Those in homes on the hills just north of Hayes valley piled their belongings into the streets and express wagons and automobiles were hauling the things away to the sparsely settled regions. Everpbody is preparing to leave San Francisco as the belief is that the city will be totally destroyed.

Downtown everything is ruins. Not a business house stands. Theatres are crumbled into heaps. Factories and commission houses lie smouldering on their fofmer sites. All the newspaper plants have been rendered useless. The Call and Examiner, excluding the Call's editorial rooms on Stevenson street, being entirely destroyed. It is estimated that the loss in San Francisco will reach nearly $200,000,000. These figuaes are in rough and nothing can be told until a partial acconnting is taken.

On every side there was death and suffering. Hundreds were injured—either burned, crushed or struck by falling pieces from the buildings, and one in ten died while on the operating table at the Methanics pavillion, improvised as a hospital for the comfort and care of three hundred of the wounded. The number is not known but it is estimated that at least 500 met their death in the horror.

At nine oclock under a special message from President Roosevelt the city was placed under martial law. Hundreds of troops patrolled the streets and drove the crowds back, while hundreds of more were set to work assisting the fire and police departments- The strictest orders were issued and in true military spirit the soldiers obeyed. During the afternoon three thiefs met their death by rifle bullets while at work in the ruins. The curious were driven back at the breasts of the horses that the cavalrymen rode and all the crowds were forced from the level districts to the hilly section beyond to the north.

The water supply was entirely cut off, and may be it was just as well, as the lines of the fire department would have been absolutely useless at any stage. Assistant Chief Daugherty supervised the work of his men and early in the morning it was seen that the only possible chance to save the city, lay in an effort to check the flames by the use of dynamite. During the day a blast could be heard in any section at intervals of only a few minutes and buildings not destroyed by the fire were blown to atoms. But through the gaps made, the flames jumped, and although the failures of the police, soldiers and firemen to stop the flames, were at times sickening, the work was continued with a determination that will live as one of the features of the terrible disaster. Men worked like fiends to combat the laughing, roaring and on rushing fire demon.

The following are extracts from the body of the paper:

The first of the big structures to be destroyed was the Call building, By five o'clock in the evening the Palace hotel was destroyed. The city is a complete wreck. Every document of the city government is dessyoyed. The Mechanics pavillion covering an entire block was destroyed by fire in less than fifteen minutes. The wounded had been removed. St. Ignacious church was ruined. Most of the people were in their night clothes when they escaped from the burning buildings. Wellman & Pecks and Tillman & Bendels buildings stored with groceries, were destroyed. Levi Strass & Co., Zellerbach & Co., Holbrook, Merril & Stetson, Hicks Judd & Co., D. N. Walters, W. W. Montague, The Donahoe Es.ate Building, Uhl Bros., Bancroft busiding all went. They cannot all be ennnmerated. From Mission to Market and east to Ninth the many storied structures were gutted. The Grand Hotel and all the newspaper offices were destroyed. Chinatown is burned. The entire business portion of San Francisco is gone. Governor Pardee issued a proclamation declaring Thursday a legal holiday in this ftate. Many buildings were dynamited to stop the spread of the flames but without success. Last night there were 150,000 homeless people in San Francisco. Takes two and a half hours to go around the fire zone. 3000 special policemen appointed. 25,000 fire fighters in in addition to regulars. Saloons closed by order of mayor. Hale Bros. store was dynamited. Ferry building badly cracked and damaged but safe. Clock stopped at 13 minutes past 5—time of earthquake- Twenty or more wharves collapsed along water front. Steamer San Pablo sank being struck by a falling steel girder. It is assumed that the twistings and turnings of the earth broke electric wires and caused fires. On water front hose was connected with the bay. Spring valley water system ruined by earthquake and no water could be had. Over 100 buildings were dynamited. Scores of people were drowned in the Mission. Earth sank ten feet and broke water pipes which flooded tenememts. 750 people treated at emergency hospitals. Three men and seven horses were killed in front of Bailey and Lacosta on Clay by falling walls. Larger fire companies of opinion they will be able to meet loss. About twenty smaller companies ruined. United States bonded warehouses filled with liquor de stroyed. The Emporium is in ruins, $150,000,000 estimated damage to Market street. Estimated damage to city $1,000,000,000. All the theatres were ruined. Rialto and Casserly buildings burned. Terminal hotel fell crushing twenty persons and was afterwards burned and their identity will never be known. All goverdment vehicles were pressed into service for hauling dynamite from the Presidio to heart of the city where buildings were being blown up. The city is under martial law, General Fred Funston being in command. 5000 regulars are patrolling the streets. Thousands of refugees have fled to Oakland. Lieutenant Chas. E. Pulis blown up while dynamiting houses on Sixth street. Five were killed in Oakland theatre. All brick buildings in Oakland slightly damaged. Berkeley escaped injury and none of U. S. buildings were damaged. San Jose is reported in ruins. From Santa Cruz, Monterey, Gilroy and Hollister come reports that all of these cities were completely wrecked, Hollister being worst. Death list at Santa Cruz large. All of the Stanford University buildings with one exception are reported demolished. No loss of life reported. The state asylum at Agnews is reported demolished and superintendent and his wife killed. 200 inmates escaped and are roaming over country side. Miliary academy at Warren partly demolished, President Roosevelt telegraphed Governor Pardee offering assistance.

WHAT WILL BE THE RESULT

The result of the ruin of San Francisco is hard to figure. The loss of the banks will tie up the money market and as a result none of the local banks have opened today, waiting until they can hear from their San Francisco correspondents. Money is scarce and many of the welltodo residents can show only a few sheckles. San Francisco exchange will not be touched until returns regarding the banks are received. The local banks are of course

GREAT DAMAGE AT SANTA ROSA

Santa Rosa is a mass of ruins, the earthquake having destroyed all of the brick structures on Fourth street, including the St. Rose and Occidental hotels and the court house. The municipal water plant was ruined and the fires that sprang up could not be combatted. The ruined portion was burned over and a large portion of the residence section devastated. The fire has been gotten under control. Over two tons of cooked provisions were sent from this city to the sufferers Thursday morning and a number of citizens went down to aid in saving the residence portion.

C. E. GANTER IS OUT FOR CLERK

In this issue will be found the announcement of Clinton E. Ganter, as a candidate for the office of county clerk on the Republican ticket. Mr. Ganter is one of the younger Republicans and is very popular among the voters of this city, as was evinced by his remarkable run for city treasurer at the recent election when he received a majority of 137 over his opponent when the total vote cast was 497. Mr. Ganter has been figuring on the proposition for some time and it was with this object in view that he recently resigned his position as deputy clerk.

He had held the position of deputy county clerk for the past two years and a half and attended to the clerical business of the office in a manner that gave satisfaction to every one concerned and especially to the board of supervisors for whom he acted as clerk during that time. He was always prompt, efficient and courteous in the performance of his official duties and made many warm friends among the people with whom he was brought in contact.

During his employment in the clerk's office he was constantly in touch with the voters of the county and so will not go before the convention a stranger to the people whose support he is asking. He is energetic and possesses the qualities necessary for a winner, and, should he receive the nomination at the hands of the convention, the Republicans may rest assured that they have selected a man who has the success of the party at heart and who will work for its success first, last and all the time.

While not a native son, having been born in Wisconsin, he moved here when eight years old and bears the stamp of progress of the Californian. He is one of the laboring class and owes what success he has made in life in his own efforts. It is to the young men of the land that the Republican party must look for for its success in the future and Mr Ganter is one of the deserving ones in. whom the voters can safely place their trust.

McCowen Announces Himself.

Hale McCowen, the present county clerk, has decided to present his name to the Republican county convention again this year for renomination to that position and makes his announcement through our columns this week, which will be found under the regular heading. Mr. McCowen has held the position of clerk for sixteen years and previous to that time was deputy clerk for four years which gives him twenty years experience in that office. He is one of the few county officials who, by strict attention to business, has amassed a reasonable competence.

they had, but now I was in the hall among them. A red faced barrel of a boy did all the holding, one hand round the wrist, the other palm to palm and his knees braced up against the panel. Another was rendering ostentatious but ineffectual aid, and three or four others danced about in their pajamas. After all, they were not more than four to one. I had raised my voice, so that Raffles might hear me and take heart, and now I raised it again, yet to this day I cannot account for my inspiration, that proved nothing less.

"Don't talk so loud!" they were crying below their breath. "Don't wake 'em upstairs! This is our show!"

"Then I see you've got one of them," said I, as desired. "Well, if you want the other you can have him too. I believe he's hurt himself."

"After him! After him!" they exclaimed as one.

"But I think he got over the wall"—

"Come on, you chaps; come on!"

And there was a soft stampede to the hall door.

"Don't all desert me, I say!" gasped the red faced hero who held Raffles prisoner.

"We must have them both, Beefy!"

"That's all very well"—

"Look here," I interposed, "I'll stay by you. I've a friend outside. I'll get him too."

"Thanks, awfully," said the valiant Beefy.

The hall was empty now. My heart beat high.

"How did you hear them?" I inquired, my eye running over him.

"We were down having drinks—game o' nap—in there."

Beefy jerked his great head toward an open door, and the tail of my eye caught the glint of glasses in the firelight, but the rest of it was otherwise engaged.

"Let me relieve you," I said, trembling.

"No, I'm all right."

"Then I must insist."

And before he could answer I had him round the neck with such a will that not a gurgle passed my fingers, for they were almost buried in his hot, smooth flesh. Oh, I am not proud of it; the act was as vile as act could be; but I was not going to see Raffles taken. My one desire was to be the saving of him, and I tremble even now to think of what lengths I might have gone for its fulfillment. As it was, I squeezed and tugged until one strong hand gave way after the other and came feeling round for me, but feebly, because they had held on so long. And what do you suppose was happening at the same moment? The pinched white hand of Raffles, reddening with returning blood and with a clot of blood upon the wrist, was craning upward and turning the key in the lock without a moment's loss.

"Steady on, Bunny!"

And I saw that Beefy's ears were blue, but Raffles was feeling in his pockets as he spoke. "Now let him breathe," said he, clapping his handkerchief over the poor youth's mouth. An empty vial was in his other hand, and the first few stertorous breaths that the poor boy took were the end of him for the time being. Oh, but it was villainous, my part especially, for he must have been far gone to go the rest of the way so readily. I began by saying I was not proud of this deed, but its dastardly character has come home to me more than ever with the penance of writing it out. I see in myself, at least my then self, things that I never saw quite so clearly before. Yet let me be quite sure that I would not do the same again. I had not the slightest desire to throttle this innocent lad (nor did I), but only to extricate Raffles from the most hopeless position he was ever in, and, after all, it was better than a blow from behind. On the whole, I will not alter a word nor whine about the thing any more.

We lifted the plucky fellow into Raffles' place in the pantry.

We lifted the plucky fellow into Raffles' place in the pantry, locked the door on him and put the key through the panel. Now was the moment for thinking of ourselves, and again that infernal mask which Raffles swore by came near being the undoing of us both. We had reached the steps when we were hailed by a voice, not from without, but from within, and I had just time to tear the accursed thing from Raffles' face before he turned.

A stout man with a blond mustache was on the stairs, in his pajamas like the boys.

"What are you doing here?" said he.

"There has been an attempt upon your house," said I, still spokesman for the night and still on the wings of inspiration.

"Your sons"—

"My pupils."

"Indeed. Well, they heard it, drove off the thieves and have given chase."

"And where do you come in?" inquired the stout man, descending.

"We were bicycling past, and I actually saw one fellow come head first through your pantry window. I think he got over the wall."

Here a breathless boy returned.

"Can't see anything of him," he gasped.

"It's true, then," remarked the crammer.

"Look at that door," said I.

But unfortunately the breathless boy looked also, and now he was being joined by others equally short of wind.

"Where's Beefy?" he screamed. "What on earth's happened to Beefy?"

"My good boys," exclaimed the crammer, "will one of you be kind enough to tell me what you've been doing and what these gentlemen have been doing for you? Come in all before you get your death. I see lights in the classroom, and more than lights. Can these be signs of a carouse?"

"A very innocent one, sir," said a well set up youth with more mustache than I have yet.

"Well, Olphert, boys will be boys. Suppose you tell me what happened before we come to recriminations."

The bad old proverb was my first warning. I caught two of the youths exchanging glances under raised eyebrows. Yet their stout, easy going mentor had given me such a reassuring glance of sidelong humor as between man of the world and man of the world that it was difficult to suspect him of suspicion. I was nevertheless itching to be gone.

Young Olphert told his story with engaging candor. It was true that they had come down for an hour at nap and Dead Body of Seal Found on Beach.

San Francisco, April 7.—"Roosevelt," the biggest and most famous of the seals that have long made their home of the rocks at the Cliff House, successor to "Ben Butler" in the herd authority, has been killed.

Yeserday the body was washed ashore, and is now lying on the beach a short distance below the building from which thousands of persons had gazed to see the huge animal when it was alive.

James Wilkins identified the dead seal as the one bearing the name of President Roosevelt. He declared that the seal was shot, but by whom the shooting was done is not known.

"Roosvelt" was the largest seal ever known at the Cliff House rocks, and Mr. Wilkins says that the body weighs fully a ton.

ITALIAN BUNKOS PORTLAND POLICE

SLEUTHS PAY $500 TO FIND THE MAN WHO KILLED BIAGGIO VILARDO.

When Detectives Capture Suspect He Promptly Proves That He Is an Innocent Man.

San Francisco, April 9.—The whole city was thrown into a state of excitement yesterday morning by the receipt of news from Portland, Ore., that the police there had captured Pietro Tortorici, a suspected murderer whom the San Francisco authorities have been seeking for a year past.

Later in the day came the news that the man arrested bore no resemblance whatever to Tortorici and had been set at liberty.

Still later came the intelligence that the astute Portland detectives had been bunkoed to the tune of $500 by a simple-minded Italian, who had hoaxed them cruelly and made them the laughing stock of the Pacific Coast.

It is a wonderous story. One day last week the simple-minded Italian approached one of the astute detectives, named Day, with the information that Tortorici was in hiding in Portland and that he knew where to lay his hands upon the suspect. He offered to disclose the hiding-place for $500, but imposed the condition that he be given three days in which to leave town before the arrest should be made, as he feared the vengeance of Tortorici's friends. Of course he was to receive the $500 before leaving town.

Chief of Police Gritzmacher of Portland sent the following telegram to San Francisco: "What is the reward for Pietro Tortorici, and what are the conditions of the reward? Have information that he is around here. Party here will turn him up if reward is for information on the arrest. Answer."

Innocent Man Arrested.

It appears now that upon the receipt of Chief Dinan's reply the Portland police hunted up their would-be informant. The result was that $500 changed hands and a young Italian left town. Yesterday morning the detective pounced upon a perfectly innocent person named Sibaldi, who has been conducting a saloon in Portland since last summer. Despite his remonstrances he was dragged from his place of business and locked up in jail, while news of the important capture was flashed all over the Pacific Coast.

When the work of identification commenced there was trouble. The man arrested did not answer the published description of Tortorici in any particular. He was shorter in stature and twenty pounds heavier. His lips were thin, while those of the suspected murderer are described as almost as thick as a negro's. Sibaldi, too, proved to be a Tuscan, while Tortorici hails from Sicily. Furthermore, the arrested saloonkeeper told a perfectly straight story, describing his movements for a number of years and declaring that he had never been in San Francisco.

Mourn the Loss of $500.

Chief Gritzmacher, after an exhaustive extmination of the captive, decided that his detectives had been hoaxed. Sibaldi was sent back to his whisky bottles. The Portland detectives mourn the loss of $500. Somewhere on this continent or elsewhere is a simple-minded Italian who has $500 to set him up in business

H. E. No. 17953. for the Lot 1, Sec. 3, T. 14 N., R. 13 W., M. D. M.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Charles Underhill, George Stanbar, Edward Wentworth, John Cunningham, all of Ukiah, Calif.

A. B. HUNT, Register.

Order to Show Cause.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF MENDOCINO, State of California.

In the matter of the application of John L. McNab for a decree terminating the life estate of Susan Park McNab, now deceased.

Order to show cause why decree terminating life estate should not be made.

John L. McNab, son and heir of Alexander McNab and Susan Park McNab, deceased, having this 10th day of April, 1906, presented to this Court and filed herein his verified petition on behalf of himself and the other heirs of said deceased, for a decree terminating the life estate of Susan Park McNab, now deceased, in and to all the property set out and particularly described in said petition, situated in Mendocino County, State of California.

And it appearing to the Court from said verified petition that said Susan Park McNab is now dead and that she had a life estate in the property set out and described in said petition, and that the same has terminated by reason of her death, and that the petitioner and the other heirs on whose behalf he petitions are now the owners of said property.

It is therefore ordered by the Honorable J. Q. White, Judge of the Superior Court of Mendocino County, State of California, that all persons interested in said matter and James McNab, Charles McNab, Gavin McNab, Arthur McNab, John Liddle McNab, L. F. Long, Jr., Alexander Long, Susan Long, Joseph H. Long, James Long, Isabella Long, Maud Long, and Charles Long, the heirs and next of kin of said decedent, appear before the Superior Court in Ukiah City, Mendocino County, State of California, on Monday, the 23rd day of April, 1906, then and there to show cause if any why a decree should not be made terminating said life estate of the said Susan Park McNab, now deceased, in and to all the property set forth and described in said petition.

It is further ordered that a copy of this order be published for two successive issues prior to the said 23d day of April, 1906, in the REPUBLICAN PRESS, a newspaper printed and published in Mendocino County, State of California, and the same shall be sufficient notice under Section 1723 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

J. Q. WHITE,
Judge of the Superior Court.

EARTHQUAKE AT UKIAH

The state hospital suffered considerably and it is reported that the new administration building will have to be condemned. The tower on the building seemed to act as a wedge and pried the building apart. Two of the gables and most of the chimneys on the building went down, the chimneys crashing through the roof. Fortunately, however, no one was seriously hurt.

It appears that Willits received a worse shaking than Ukiah and the Buckner hotel was demolished, C. L. Taylor, the proprietor, being killed by the falling wall. He was the only person injured although a number had narrow escapes. Supervisor Fairbank's meat market, which was in the same building, was of course wrecked with the hotel. A portion of the wall of the Irvine & Muir company's store fell, wrecking the grocery department.

C. T. Gilger of Hopland, who was in the second story of the hotel at the time, says that the first shock occured at 5:12 and that there was then a heavy shock and two lighter ones followed and that the vibrations were from three to four feet from north to south. Mr. Gilger jumped out of bed and out on the porch where he was thrown down by the shock. He reached the edge and jumped off just as the front walls fell into the street, just missing him. C. L. Taylor, he says, must have been just behind him and the wall fell on him as he jumped, killing him instantly. About twenty other people were in the building, but as the hotel did not fall until there was another shock at ten oclock, they all got out safely.

So violent was the shock that all the horses in the livery stables were thrown down. A crack about a quarter of an inch wide was opened in the street near the Palace. The brick buildings were all slightly damaged, excepting, probably the company's store.

North of Willits and south of this city in this county, no damage is reported, Hopland, Wendling, Boonville, Calpella, Potter, Laytonville, Cahto and Covelo, losing only a few chimneys. The coast section, however, appears to have fared worse. Two liquor drummers, who were in Fort Bragg reached Wendling Thursday morning and telephoned to this city as follows: "The City of Fort Bragg is a total wreck. The boilers in the Union Lumber company's plant exploded and killed two men. This cut off the water supply for fire fighting, which was pumped from the mill pond by the company's engines. The town caught fire and is now in ashes."

The shock turned the Albion mill completely around and the dry kilns, which were on piling were thrown into the ocean. Mendocino was badly shaken up and the smokestacks fell on the mill. Owing to the water supply being uninjured, the town was saved from fire. The Mendocino bridge was wrecked.

No mail has been received from the coast for two days and all the telephone and telegraph lines were put out of order by the earthquake. Communication has been established by telegraph as far as Tiburon. Telephone messages have been received from Santa Rosa, Wendling, Lake county and Potter.

Lake connty had a heavy shock and it is reported that some of the buildings are damaged and the new Masonic temple was wrecked at Lakeport. Healdsburg lost a couple of buildings, but Cloverdale, Petaluma and San Rafael were not badly damaged.

The merchants fell confident that they have supplies enough on hand to last for several weeks, but they will not sell more than four bits worth to an individual, as there is no telling where they will get supplies from, the wholesale houses having having all been destroyed. There is no possibility of a shortage of flour, however, as everyone has laid in a sack and Manager Holthauser of the Ukiah mills, reports having enough on hand to last three months besides what is in the stores. The meat supply will not be affected, and Ukiahites need not worry.

Steward Handy of the asylum reports that he has provisions enough on hand to last three weeks. A number of Ukiah people who were in San Francisco have not been heard from. Attorney C. M. Mannon, the Cunningham boys, Henry Waugh, Mrs. Cranz and several others have returned. Attorney Thatcher, Henry Marks and family, the Misses Redemeyer and others who were in the city are safe. John Cunningham and his bride have not been heard from, but are thought not to have been in the city. C. A. McComber was reported killed at Santa Rosa.

Lafe Van Dusen has suspended business pending the removal of the ruined White building, which is in a dangerous condition.

Assessor Thomas and Frank Sandelin received letters from Fort Bragg this evening stating that the White House block was burned. Sandelin's loss is $5000.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

HILL'S FORCES OUST S. P. MEN

GRADERS ON PORTLAND AND SEATTLE LINE FIND S. P. MEN IN THEIR PLACES.

The Columbia River Gang Stole a March and Occupy the Cut Where They Began Digging.

Portland, Ore., April 11.—A dramatic and desperate climax in the great railway warfare between Harriman's forces and the Hill Contingent represented by the Portland and Seattle line was recorded here, when the latter seized upon sticks of lighted dynamite as effective weapons with which to drive their enemies from the disputed field.

The scene was theatrical, but the dynamite was realistic enough. Stick after stick of the blazing explosive was hurled into the midst of the graders in the Columbia valley party, from the vantage point of a cliff on the McIsaac farm where the aggressors had stationed themselves. Their position was well taken, as the grading party was located in a cut directly below them.

But Chief Engineer P. L. Wise is not afraid of dynamite. He proved that by doing a bold thing. He caught the flaming missiles as they fell and quenched their fuses with as little concern as though they had been tallow candles.

"I guess those fellows don't know as much about dynamite as I do," he remarked.

Then the bombarders checkmated further attempts to extinguish the fuses by immediately shortening them before applying matches. After that they continued hurling the fiery weapons and succeeded in scattering the Harriman workers.

The dispute was over a right of way claimed by both parties. The Columbia valley gang stole a march and occupied the cut, where they began digging to lower their opponent's grade four feet to comply with the Columbia valley survey.

All the tools, dump cars and other working material of the Hill forces had first been laid carefully in a heap on one side.

When the Portland and Seattle people arrived they were very much surprised to find their places taken by the Harriman workmen. The graders swarmed down upon the interlopers, but were driven away after a hand-to-hand struggle in which fists only were used, and no one was hurt.

After a council of war by the defeated party sticks of dynamite were thrown toward the busy Harriman graders. As these produced no effect, the sticks with lighted fuses followed. The demonstration was made with the evident purpose of driving out the intruders, rather than to cause loss of life. No arrests have been made.

HUNDREDS KILLED BY FALLING ROOF

HUNDREDS PERISH IN BIG MARKET AT NAPLES WHEN ROOF FALLS.

Men, Women and Children in Monte Oliveto Market Go to Death With Jests on Their Lips.

Naples, April 11.—A frightful disaster has occurred in the center of this city, following the eruptions of Mount Vesuvius. Two hundred people, it is estimated, were buried yesterday morning in the ruins of the Monte Oliveto market, when the roof collapsed under the weight of cinders from the volcano.

The exact number of persons within the building at the moment of the catastrophe is not known and the list of fatalities is problematical.

The disaster at the market place was appalling. The courtyard covers 600 feet square and was roofed. The space within was unusually crowded with buyers and their children, the accident happening at the hour of the day when trade is most brisk. Rival displays of flowers, fruits and vegetables contended for buyers, while market women screamed their wares and joked with their customers. Little children played about the stands, adding gayety to the scene, the like of which is not to be witnessed outside of Naples.

Suddenly, with scarcely a tremor of warnings, there was a terrific crash and the brilliant sights disappeared in a cloud of dust, while shrieks of agony rent the air.

The collapse of the market roof again turned the city of Naples into mourning. The people seemed demented. They surrounded the market, in many cases tearing their hair, cursing and screaming "Oh, my husband, where is he?" or "Bring out my child!" and endeavoring with their own hands to move heavy beams, from beneath which the groans of the injured were issuing.

The cries for help were so heart rending that even rescuers were heard to sob aloud as they were working with feverish eagerness to save life or extricate the bodies of the dead from the ruins. Such was the anxiety of the people to take part in the work of rescue that it required determined efforts on the part of the large force of police and carbineers present to keep the most desperate from moving beams too precipitately and thereby causing further deaths or injuries.

Reports reaching the city yesterday morning from points throughout the district surrounding Ottajano indicate that an enormous area is buried beneath ashes and cinders of Vesuvius.

The present disaster is looked upon as a repetition of the catastrophe to Pompeii and Herculaneum, except that in this instance the loss of life is less.

All efforts on the part of the press representatives and the authorities to ascertain the exact number of those who have already fallen victims to the eruptions of Vesuvius have so far failed.

This is accounted for from the fact that the buried villages are impossible of access, and further because the people who fled when their houses began to fall have scattered throughout the country districts. The finding of 146 bodies is determined as follows:

At San Giuseppe, 79; at Torsigno, 20; at Ottajano, 47.

Many tales are told of heroic rescues on the part of soldiers sent to the assistance of the sufferers from the volcano disaster at Ottajano and elsewhere One man rode his horse through the ashes reaching up to its flanks at Ottajano, calling out, "Who wants help?" He was rewarded by hearing a woman's voice reply in weak tones, and, springing from his horse, the soldier called a comrade to his assistance and floundered among the ashes until he arrived at the ruined walls of a house from which the voice seemed to come. As he made his way toward the building the soldier shouted words of encouragement, and climbing over a heap of ruins, and braving a toppling wall, he entered the building and in the cellar found the bodies of three children. Near them was a woman, barely alive, who, by almost superhuman efforts, lasting for hours, had succeeded in freeing herself from a mass of debris which had fallen upon her.

The soldier picked the woman up in his arms and carried her to a place of safety, where it was found that both of her legs were broken, and that she had been badly crushed about the body.

The mass meeting held in Woodward's Pavilion to protest against the arrest and alleged kidnaping of Moyer, Haywood, Pettibone and St. John, officials of the Western Federation of Miners, in connection with the murder of Governor Steunenberg of Idaho, and to raise funds in defense of the imprisoned men, was followed by a parade down Market street and an open-air meeting at Lotta's fountain, at the junction of Geary and Kerney streets, San Francisco. The pulling down of a red banner displayed on the fountain, and the arrest of George S. Holmes, the speaker, resulted in a conflict between the crowd and the police, lasting nearly an hour. Three policemen were injured about the head by bricks and stones, and a number of the participants in the conflict received bruises and contusions from the clubs of the police. Calvin P. Davis, who for forty years resided in Green Valley, Cal., where he had a large estate, died yesterday near San Jose.

King Edward has ordained that Princess Ena of Battenberg, the future Queen of Spain, shall henceforth be styled her Royal Highness.

Senators Kittredge, Knox and Morgan were yesterday named as a subcommittee to prepare a bill for the government of the Canal zone.

The finding of another enormous hunk of beeswax on the Nehalem beach, Ore., by D. R. Lane has led to the discovery that settles the long discussed problem of the origin of the Nehalem coast beeswax. It is said to have been the remains of a cargo of 800 tons of beeswax brought from Spain in a ship that was lost on the coast more than 200 years ago.

Candle Set Fire to Her Clothes.

Los Angeles, April 9.—Mrs. Herbert N. Potter was burned to death at her home at East Gabriel, a few miles from this city. The woman was carrying a lighted candle, which she set on the floor for a moment. Her clothing accidentally came in contact with the flams and was ignited. Before assistance could reach her she was enveloped in flames and so seriously burned that she died shortly afterward. Her clothing was burned entirely from her body.

Will Build Road to Mines in Alaska.

Tacoma, April 7.—The American Smelters Company is to build 125 miles of railroad from Valdez to its Bonanza copper mine in Alaska at once. This has been decided upon by Daniel Guggenheim, president of the company, after a consultation with W. R. Rust of the Tacoma smelter. The ore will be made into "mats" at Valdez and shipped here to be refined Deaf as an Adder.

The expression "deaf as an adder" is from the Psalms of David, where it appears in the following form: "Their poison is like the poison of serpents. They are like the deaf adder that stoppeth her ear, which will not harken to the voice of charmers, charming ever so wisely.'" East Indian travelers tell us that there is a widely prevailing superstition in the east to the effect that both the viper and the asp stop their ears when the charmer is uttering his incantations or playing his music by turning one ear to the ground and twisting the point of the tail into the other.

MENDOCINO VALLEY SCENES — COUNTY BUILDINGS — MENDOCINO LOGGING AND COAST SCENES

VOL. XXX. UKIAH, MENDOCINO CO., CAL.: FRIDAY, APRIL 20, 1906. NO. 32

THE LATEST NEWS

At 2 o'clock yesterday the burned district as established by military and police lines, extended from the ferries north along the water front to Broadway, west on Broadway to Taylor, south on Taylor to Jackson, west on Jackson to Larkin. South on Larkin to Clay. West on Clay to Polk, south on Polk to Sacramento. West on Sacramento to Franklin, south on Franklin to Eddy, west on to Octavia, south on Octavia to Market, out Market to Guerrero, along Guerrero to 18th, down 18th to Howard, east on Howard to 16th, south on 16th to Folsom, east on Folsom to 14th, south on 14th to Harrison, around the Harrison street curve to 11th, south on 11th to Bryant, east on Bryant to 8th, south on 8th to Townsend, east on Townsend to Japan, north on Japan to Brannon, around the St. Mary's Hospital Hill to Bryant, east on Bryant to Beale, north on Beale to Harrison, east on Harrison to Fremont, north on Fremont to Folsom, west on Folsom to Stewart, north on Stewart to Howard, and along Howard to east and back to the ferries.

Explosions of sewer gas ribboned and ripped many streets. Thursday afternoon a Vesuivius in miniature was created by an upheaval on Bryant and 8th streets. Cobble stones were hurled 20 feet upwards and dirt vomited out of the ground. Disturbances of this character caused many to think the earth was still unquiet and women were hysterical.

Three relief stationy for the homeless have been established by the general committee. The stations are tempory homes for the homeless. The stations are Golden Gate park, Presidio and San Bruno road. By order of the General Committee, all remaining stores were entered by the police last evening and their goods confiscated. They are now on their way to the relief stations.

At Guerrero and Duboce avenue a handful of men backed up by an engine drawing from a weakly running water main made a gallant effort to keep the flames from leaping across the street an finding their way to the German hospital. At midnight the blaze had not conquered the firemen.

Over 100 inmates and many attendants were crushed to death at the Agnews asylum. Among the number was Miss Holmes, formerly employed at the State hospital near this city.

Officers of the Spring Valley Water company stated late yesterday that they expected to be able to furnish ten million gallons of water today or tomorrow. There is water left at Van Ness Avenue and the engines there are fighting the fire with fresh water. In the Mission district there is water but there are no engines and the fire is burning at will.

When the conflagration was at its height and the only hope of the fire fighters was to blow up block after block the stock of dynamite ran low. An order was issued to Captain Harris to proceed to the powder works near Port Costa and take every available ouce for use in opposing the flames.

Unaware of the terrible devastation in San Francisco, hunhreds of fruit and vegetable wagons backed up the markets early yesterday morning. Without warning the heavy brick wall suddenly collapsed, killing numberless horses and at least 25 men. The exact number will never be known.

Freight cars that had been deposited at warehouse doors along the north side of Townsend street were destroyed. The jagged walls of where was the Pacific can factory, the most expensive establishment of its kind in the world, form a vat a block square filled solidly with cubes and cylinders of blackened tin.

All the Ukiah people absent from home have been heard from and reported safe with the exception of John Cunningham and bride, who are on their wedding trip, and are supposed to have bevn in San Jose or Los Angeles at the time of the disaster.

The Vallejo street freight depot was saved by the employees.

It is reported that the tremblor has turned the mud springs at Branscomb into miniature geysers and that they are spouting several feet in the air.

Three Shocks Destroy More Buildings--Fear that Trouble Is Not Yet Over

Willits, 4 p m—Willits is still suffering from earthquakes and the building owned by Mrs N M Vincent on Main street and occupied by Gunnar Spjuth as a harness shop has just fallen as the result of a shock a few minutes ago. The remainder The Irvine & Muir Cos store which was partially demolished Wednesday morning has gone down as has also the rear walls of the McElroy building occupied by M A Singlelins saloon.

These buildings were all one story bricks and had been damaged by former shocks. The earthquakes commencen again last evening and two light shocks were felt. At quartes of two this morning a heavy shock was felt and the one this afternoon completed the damage. The one story wooden dwelling of C F Vincent was thrown from its foundations and overturned.

BREAD A DOLLAR A LOAF.

The price of bread has risen to $1 a loaf in San Francisco and even at that enormous price is extremely limited. Hundreds are starving for the unfortunate ones who lost everything in the fire have nothing to buy with.

LOS ANGELES RELIEF CORPSE.

Los Angeles relief corpse consisting of 40 physicians, 70 nurses and several prominent citizens arrived in San Francisco and visited the Presidio and found that their assistance was not needed. They wil establish a relief hospital in Oakland.

Conried's Grand Opera company lost property to the value of a quarter of a million in the fire. All the scenery and costumes have been reduced to ashes. The treasures of the Hopkins Aart Institute have been rescued by outsiders pressed into service by Lieutenant McMillan. The cable system and power houses were dynamited at noon to keep the flames inside of Van Ness Avenue.

Stanford University is in ruins. Three are dead. Loss is estimated at between 4 and $5,000,000. None of the Ukiah students are injured. The famous Capel was entirely destroyed.

"Scour the bay for launches to take the refugees to the other side," was the order given by General Funston yesterday to the commander of Geo. B. Harris. This boat replaced the General Slocum. 30 passengers were transferred and the Slocum was sent to Port Costa for more dynamite. Many persons were thus enabled to escape.

At a late hour last night the main fire was stopped on the west by Van Ness Avenue. Immediately east of Van Ness the fire was raging and eating northward to the lower bay over the crest of Russian hill. Another and separate fire is working through the gap between Russian and Telegraph hills. The whole north beach district is doomed. A third fire is burning in the vicinity of 16th and Dolores and is climbing toward Twin Peaks and Park Hills.

The freight sheds which extend south from Townsend street toward China Basin were saved. A break in the Spring valley Water company's main at Brannan and 8th streets made an oasis in the desert. All day carriers of jugs from camps established on Townsend street and the hillside bordering on Railroad avenue were huddled around the spring.

SAN FRANCISCO

For miles through the park and along the beaches from Ingleside to the sea wall the homeless are encamped in tents, with shifts rigged up with a few sticks of wood and a sheet or a blanket. Some, with better transportation facilities, managed to carry regulation tents. Golden Gate park and the Presidio and Fort Mason are the scenes of greatest activity. Rigs are rushing to and fro and the loads are being dumped into any available place and going back to the district outside of the fire zone for a new load. A great many of these unfortunates were unaware that transportation by the regular ferries to Oakland was again in operation, and it is safe to say that when it is generally known, the boats cannot begin to carry those wishing to leave. About 3 oclock this afternoon an officer in an auto rode down Van Ness Avenue to Fort Mason shouting the news that the Government had arranged for the use of several steamers to transport all wishing to go to Oakland free. A great rush was made and thousands upon thousands waited in line for their turn. In the meantime the hills and beeches of San Francisco look like a tented city. The earthquake and fire victims take things in a cool manner and good nature is the rule.

Headquarters have been opened by the Bank Commission in the Syndicate building of Oakland. President Dunsmoor and Secretary Ewing will meet all of the bankers of the State to adjust the money situation Saturday.

Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Postal Telegraph company, telegraphed President Wheeler of the University of California that he would contribute $100,000 toward the erection of new buildings for the University.

Late last night the fire department men who have not slept since the city was so horribly awakened were sticking with their hose lines in the vicinity of Howard and 17th streets. This is a district of frame residences and the battle was for every inch of ground. Water was being pumped from a well and with this stream they were holding their own against the elements of the flame. At midnight the fire, although successful several times in finding its way across 16th into Howard, had been prevented from gaining any headway beyond this point.

Canned goods were found and the hungry set about opening cans with bricks and eating the crusty contents. Ragged tramps descended to the smoking pits and turned up the safes. The police stopped them and warned them against further action in this line. Three men were shot and another wounded before they were stopped.

At 1 o'clock it was determined to put the railroad hospital at 14th and Mission streets out of the way by blowing it up. Patients were removed early in the morning.

San Francisco has a refuge of its own on this side of the bay. George A. Hensley, who owns much of the San Bruno park in San Mateo county has offered his holdings as free camping grounds for the sufferers. He has bought 1000 barrels of flour and if the relief will attend to food supplies, will undertake to transport enough water for the sufferers. A large supply of tents has been bought. The Western Meat company will send meat to the grounds. Automobiles and busses have been made ready for free transportation of the afflcted.

The president at 6 o'clock tonight sent a joint resolution appropriating $10,000,000 for the San Francisco sufferers. John D. Rockfeller today authorized his agents to $100,000 for the relief of the homeless and destitute. Oakland subscribed subscribed $5,600. Portland has raised $100,000. Seattle $40,000. Pursuant to the order of Secretary of War Taft, the Quartermaster's Department of Philadelphia has shipped to San Francisco 35,00 conical tents. Sacramento raised $500,000 in 15 minutes. During the day $25,000 more has been collected and devoted to the purchase of provisions. Sacramento Chinese have collected $3,000 for the relief of the fire sufferers of their own race. The relief trains left Chicago with provisions for San Francisco and Oakland.

Word from San Jose is to the effect that few buildings are standidings. Twenty-five are dead and the property damage cannot be estimated. In proportion to its sile the damage is nearly as great as in San Francisco.

Word was received this morning from Covelo to the effect that that city was not injured by the earthquake beyond losing some brick chimneys and the glass out of the store fronts.
